Meditation on the Vanity and Brevity of Human Life, wrote in Imitation of the Pſalms; extracted from a Book lately publiſhed, entitled, A ſelect Manual of Divine Meditations and Prayers, &c.

UNHAPPY we; children of the duſt! why were we born to ſee the Sun?

Why did our mothers bring us forth to miſery; and unkindly rejoice to hear us cry?

Whither, alas! has their Error led us! into how ſad a condition doth our birth engage us?

We enter into the world with weeping eyes, and go out with ſighing hearts:

All the few days we live are full of vanity; and our choiceſt pleaſures ſprinkled with bitterneſs:

The time that's paſt is vaniſh'd like a dream; and that which is to come is not yet at all:

The preſent we are in ſtays but for a moment, and then flies away, and returns no more:

Already we are dead to the years we have liv'd; and ſhall never live them over again:

But the longer we live, the ſhorter is our life; and in the end, we become a little lump of clay.

O vain, and miſerable world! how ſadly true is all this ſtory!

And yet, alas, this is not all; but new complaints remain, and more, and worſe:

We begin our race in contemptible weakneſs; and our whole courſe is a progreſs of dangers:

If we eſcape the miſchances of a child, we paſs to the raſh adventures of youth:

If we outlive thoſe ſudden ſtorms, we fall into more deſtructive evils:

Our ſuperfluous cares deliberately conſume us, and the croſſes of the world wear out our lives.

Should we, by ſtrange ſucceſs, o'ercome all theſe, and ſtill bear up our proſperous head:

We are ſure, at laſt, old age will find us, and bow our ſtrength down to the grave;

The grave, from which no privilege exempts, whoſe power no creature is able to controul.

The rich muſt leave their wealth behind them; and the great ones of the world be crumbled into duſt:

The beauteous face muſt be turn'd into rottenneſs; and the pamper'd body become the food of worms.

The buſy man muſt find a time to die; tho' his full Employment ſpares none to provide for it.

Even the wiſe and vertuous, muſt ſubmit to fate; and the heirs of life be made the priſoners of death.

This when I ſee, I weep, and am afraid; ſince we muſt all drink of the ſame cold cup:

All muſt go down to the ſame dark grave; and none can tell how ſoon he may be called.

To day we are in health, among our friends and affairs; and to-morrow arreſted by the hand of death.

Nature may faintly ſtruggle for a time, but muſt yield at laſt and be buried in the earth.

At laſt we muſt take leave of our neareſt relations; and bid a long farewell to all the world.

Perhaps, the people may talk of us a while; ſometimes as we deſerve, and often as they pleaſe:

Perhaps, our bodies once laid out of ſight, we are remember'd no more than if we had never been.

Only our good works follow us to the grave; and go faithfully with us, beyond our funerals.

Give me, eternal reſt, O merciful Lord, and may thy glorious light ſhine upon me for ever.

London, April 20.

Extract of a Letter from Oporto, March 11.

ON the 3d Inſt. at Night a Spaniſh Brigt. or Snow, of about 130 Tons, bound from Cadiz to Corunna with Cocoa, Stuffs, Oil &c. and ſeveral Paſſengers, was wreck'd about half a League to the Northward of Viana. Four or five Sailors ſaved their Lives, but all the others periſhed periſhed, (as as a great Sea run) amounting to 20 Perſons, amongſt whom were the Duke de Ripperda's Son and Family, Priſoners: He was ſeen, tho' fetter'd, to ſtand on a Rock ſome time, till a Sea waſh'd him off.

His Majeſty has been pleas'd to nominate the moſt Hon. The Marquis of Lothian to be his High-Commiſſioner to the enſuing General Aſſembly of the Church of Scotland, and his Lordſhip ſet out a few Days ago for Edinburgh accordingly.

Paris, April 26. After all, the King is determined to take the Field this Campaigne, the Day of his Departure for the Rhine being fixed for the 15th of May. His Majeſty will be accompanied thither by the Duke of Orleans and the Duke of Bourbon, and will ſoon be followed by all the other Princes of the Blood.

The Queen goes on mighty well with her Great Belly, and looks to lie in toward the latter End of June.

Hague, May 4. Prince Eugene of Savoy is at laſt arrived in the Imperial Army; ſo that we ſhall ſoon hear whether that Army will undertake any Enterprize. As for the French, bating the Siege of Traerbach, they ſeem inclined to the Defenſive; Their Troops basking upon the Banks of the Rhine and the Moſelle, and at the ſame time making a prodigious Diverſion, by keeping all the Forces of the Emperor and the Empire at a Bay, which (were it not ſo) might perform great Exploits in Italy, and poſſibly prevent the Fall of tottering Kingdoms.

Though King Auguſtus has not renounced the Crown of Poland, yet his Majeſty ſhews no Inclination to return into that Kingdom; at leaſt there is no more Talk of it at Dreſden, than if there was no ſuch Country in the World. This gives a particular Pleaſure to the People of Saxony, who would be glad to have their Elector always reſide among them, and never think more of Warſaw or Poland, which drains Saxony of Men and Money.

Dantzick ſeems yet to fear nothing; and after all the Boaſts of General Munich's Progreſs, if there is any Truth in the laſt Letters from thence, the Ruſſians are ſtill at ſuch a Diſtance from the Town, that all the Bombs and burning Bullets they can throw, will not be able to do them much Hurt; and ſo long as they are not Maſters of Stolzberg and Biſſchoffsberg, ſo long they will be harmleſs, and the Dantzickers may wait with Patience the Dilatory Succours from France. As for the Polanders, though Staniſlaus is the only King at preſent, yet he can depend on no Aſſiſtance from them; for neither Kiowſai, nor Pociey, nor Czerski, nor Tarlo, though each of them is ſaid to be at the Head of 20 or 30,000 Men, can ſuccour their King, and deliver a Town that has had the Courage to ſacrifice itſelf for him.

An Expreſs is gone thro' this Place from the North for Paris. It is reported,, that 2000 French Troops are arrived at or near Dantzick.

Frankfort, April 18. The Duke de Beveren has promiſed us to keep this Town as the Apple of his Eye; and adds, that he has the Emperor's Orders ſo to do. We hear the French have inveſted Mentz.

Frankfort, May 6. The French Army having paſſed the Rhine, Prince Eugene broke up with the Imperial Army to obſerve their Motions. An Expreſs has brought Advice that the Duke of Berwick has forced the Lines of Etlingen, and is advanced to Dourlach.

London, May 4. Sir John Norris continues to have the Sailors on board the Ships in the Downs, to exerciſe their ſmall Arms on the Decks; he likewiſe exercites them in the way of working the Ships; and as he looſens any Sail on board his own Ship, all the reſt do the like, and ſo looſen, hand and furl every different Sail, as he does, in order to bring the young Sailors to the knowledge of the Tacks, Braces, Halliards and Reops; neither does he ſtir out of his Ship, or permit the Officers.

New-York, July 29. On the 26th arrived here his Majeſty's Ship the Tartar Pink, Capt. Norris, to be our Station Ship. 'Tis ſaid they left the Iſle of Wight the 9th of June. The News ſhe brings, as is reported, is, that the Elections for a new Parliament were all over, and a Majority in the Intereſt of the Court. That Sir John Norris, with the Squadron under his command, lay ſtill in the Downs, ready to ſail on the firſt Orders, (but whither, is ſtill a ſecret.) That ſome of the French Succours were arrived at Dantzick, on which the Garriſon made a Sally, in which they killed 3000 Ruſſians, and among them two General Officers; what Men of the Garriſon were killed in the Sally we do not hear. That after that Action the Ruſſians were reinforced with 10,000 freſh Men, and that it was believed that Garriſon muſt ſurrender in a very few Days. That Prince Eugene with the Germans were ſtrongly intrenched on the Rhine, expecting the Hanoverian, Pruſſian and Heſſian Forces. That there had been an Action in Italy, in which the Germans had the Advantage. Yeſterday a Brigantine arrived here in five Weeks from Lisbon, with News that the King of Sardinia was kill'd by a Cannon Shot in Italy. It is alſo reported that one of our Men of War went over the Bar of Sallee, and deſtroyed all their Shipping except a Brigantine.

This Morning a poor Woman was found in Labour in the Great Meeting Houſe Yard; and being deliver'd there of a Boy, was convey'd away in a chair by order of the Overſeers of the Poor to a more convenient Place.

Extract of a Letter from an Engliſh Gent. at Lisbon, July 1.
No Appearance of any Accomodation between the Emperor and France, &c. a Body of about 4000 Troops of the former have been defeated by the Spaniards at Naples, ſome of them ſlain, the reſt with the Viceroy ſurrendred themſelves Priſoners. On the Rhine Prince Eugene has now got together a large Body of Troops, and it is believed there has by this time been an Engagement, and that the Succeſs thereof will determine England what Meaſures to take. Our Fleet are yet in the Channel, and tho' it's probable we ſhall not enter this Year into the War, it is to be feared there will be no keeping longer out of it. Our Court however has declared to the States of Holland, That in whatſoever manner Things may turn, they are firm in their Reſolutions not to engage till they ſhall take the Alarm. P. S. July 3. By yeſterday's Mail there is Advice of the Death of Marſhal Villars at Turin, and of his Son at Lyons. The Duke of Berwick was kill'd by a Cannon Ball as he was viewing ſome of the Works at the Siege of Philipſburgh; and 'tis ſaid Count Tarlo, who was to command the French Forces ſent to Dantzick is alſo killed: The Siege of that Place goes on very briskly, but the beſieged ſtill hold out
